FARM & HOME WEEK ROOM RESERVATIONS AVAILABLE

Housing plans for the 50th annual Farm and Home Week at the University of Maine are complete. Prof. Herbert A. Leonard, program committee chairman, announced today that room reservations are open to everyone and that reservation cards have been sent to all guests who lived in dormitories during part or all of the 1956 Farm and Home session.

"The expected increase in registration for this 50th anniversary event makes it desirable to have room reservations made well in advance," said Prof. Leonard. Rooms may be reserved for any night of the four-day program by writing William C. Wells, Manager of Dormitories, University of Maine, Orono.

The practice of turning University facilities over to visitors has been long established in conjunction with Maine's Farm and Home Week. As in the past meals will be served throughout the week in the University dining halls at reasonable prices.

The 1957 program will start on Monday, April 1, and continue through Thursday, April 4, commemorating the 50-year growth of the only remaining Farm and Home Week in New England.

Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Clark Brown, Jr. (Blythe King) who were married Jan. 8 at the Bryant Pond Universalist Church.

The Week in Oxford County

Paul C. Thurston was re-elected president of the Rumford Bank and Trust Company at the trustees' annual meeting Tuesday.

An estimated damage of $2,000 to supplies and equipment was caused at the Chicken Coop Restaurant in Mexico Tuesday afternoon. A skunkish water main at the corner of Bridge Street and Oxford Avenue burst and water poured into the restaurant. Repair work was expected to enable the restaurant to open on Wednesday.

The intense cold the first of the week made it impossible for Dixfield to make satisfactory ice for hockey, so the Dixfield - St. Donns meeting was postponed until February.

The Douglas House in Waterford is ready for the occupancy of a refugee family. Many people in the Oxford County United Parish have cooperated with a committee headed by Omer Kimball.

THE LEGISLATURE

by Chloé Evans

The final day of the second week of this 1957 Legislature will probably be remembered a long time. Among the memorable events it brought were these:

1. A governor's budget message which proposed a record balanced budget of $324-million plus a supplemental budget of $15,800,000, the latter supported by an increase in the sales tax.

2. A heart-to-heart meeting of the Governor's Council with the chairman of the Republican State Committee... probably the first of its kind ever held.

3. A meeting of the Republican Legislative Liaison Committee in which legislative leaders and members of the GOP committee voted to favor a November state election date, four-year governor's terms, popular election of the Executive Council, and to recommend other important changes in Republican policy.

The Budget Message
Governor Muskie's proposed general fund budget for the next two years represents an increase of $7-million over that of two years ago. To finance highway allocations totaling $61-million, the Governor offered four bond-issue choices, with reminded that the budget calls for spending $9,300,000 more than estimated revenue.

In his 1956 budget message the Governor had proposed a sales tax increase or a graduated income tax. Both were rejected. This time he proposed only that the 2% sales tax be raised to 3%. If it is raised—and some Democrats as well as Republicans objected—he proposed to exempt water, electricity and gas domestically used. He estimated an additional $74-million would accrue yearly from the sales tax rise.

Beside the general fund budget, the Governor recommended $9,000,000 worth of public building and other non-highway construction, to be financed from the general fund surplus. He also repeated his 1955 desire, which was rejected, that $2-million a year be placed in a construction fund reserve.

It took the Governor an hour and a half to deliver the $500 word speech and, in contrast to the acting in which the inaugural address was delivered, there were plenty of empty seats.

The chief executive said his was not "an austerity budget," but neither was it intended to provide luxuries. Some of the increases represented were in: Education subsidies, $3,618,718; commodity costs, $279,000; operating cost of new

COLD IS BREAKING 35-YEAR RECORD

Cold weather, said to equal records of some 35 years ago, has prevailed the past week. Except Sunday morning, thermometers have stood at zero or below, and Sunday became increasingly cold through the day. Monday morning readings were reported as low as 40 degrees below zero, and Tuesday with only a little warmer. Snowfall beginning Wednesday morning when it was well below zero continued into the night. The snow was light, but amounted to about 10 inches. More cold weather is promised.

Included in the proposed supplemental budget were these larger items: Matching federal funds for municipal sewage disposal plants, $835,000; Development Dept. work, $102,000; Pownall State School staff and training improvement, $508,000; nursing home care for the aged, blind, disabled and for dependent children, $560,000; University of Maine, $400,000; state teachers colleges, $188,000; pay increases for state employees, $1,838,000; and hospital care for medically indigent, $550,000.

The proposed capital improvements included: State teachers college building, $2,268,000; Pownall State School, $1,475,000; University of Maine, $2,100,000; and airport construction aid, $175,000.

The four bond issue choices the Governor offered for financing supplemental highway projects included two covering four-year programs and two 12-year plans, ranging from $35-million to $107-million. He opposed an increase in the seven-cent state gasoline tax and offered a decrease in various motor vehicle fees.

Joint Standing Committees
The Joint Standing Committees of the 90th Legislature are now formed and ready to go to work. Although all of the chairmanships are held by the majority party, the proportion of assignments of Democrats is about the same as the relative minority membership in Senate and House.

The presiding officers of the two branches named Democrats to 12 of the 72 Senate places, and to 12 of the 181 House positions.

By joint order, the Legislature also voted to create a new standing committee on State Government and a select committee on Constitutional Amendments. The body is authorized to weigh measures submitted to it by the Legislature and to report out bills and resolutions of its own. Its Senate Chairman is Benjamin Ch. Farrington; its House Chairman, Rep. Cleveland P. Curtis, Bowdoinham.

S. BETHEL LANDMARK LOST IN SUBZERO FIRE

The home of Rodney Chase and family at South Bethel was totally destroyed Sunday night by a fire which spread in the attic from a chimney which had been overheated that afternoon. Smoke was first noticed after most of the family had retired and the children awoken with little besides their night clothing.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Chase and four children, the house was the home of Mr. Chase's mother, Mrs. Sarah Chase and Mrs. Emma Gaudette and Lester Mason.

Although some furnishings were saved from the house, the greater part including much clothing, furniture and valuable articles was lost. There was insurance on both the building, which belonged to P. H. Chadbourne, and the Chase's belongings.

The fire occurred in the coldest night of the winter so far, and firemen were handicapped in getting water to the scene from the river at the Chadbourne mill. It was the opinion of some observers that the building was doomed by the time help arrived even if water had been available then. The quick response of the fire department is to be commended.

The building was among the older structures in town and is said to have served as a tavern in "agecoach days." It was for years occupied by the late I. A. Cushman and family, and later by Howard Hutchins, Henry Hall, Frank Brooks, and others besides the Chase family.

The group voted 22 to the polo drive.

Refreshments of oatmeal and graham bread and coffee were served by Mrs. Eva Brown, assisted by Mrs. Abbie Brown.

The next meeting will be held at the Home Ec Cottage February 12th, with Mrs. Wallace Saunders leading the discussion on "Adequate Storage."

BARRETT - KNEELAND

Miss Susan Jane Kneeland, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald L. Kneeland, became the bride of John Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Barrett of Aurora, Ill., at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church in Aurora, Dec. 22. The double ring service was performed by the Rev. A. E. Richter, pastor of the church. Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Berkehart, organist.

The church's beautiful Christmas decorations were an attractive setting for the white poinsettias and cardinals which adorned each side of the altar.

Given in marriage by her brother, David Kneeland, of Aurora, the bride wore a beige suit and hat and a corsage of white roses. She was attended by Miss Lois J. J. of Aurora as bridesmaid and the best man was Paul Barrett, brother of the groom. Donald Barrett, also a brother of the groom, was the usher.

A reception was held in the Pine Room of the church following the ceremony. Refreshments were served by the Misses Sally Howard and Martha Lull. The guest book was attended by Miss Jane Ashley and the Misses Judith Trist and Betty Gleason were in charge of the gifts. These girls are all students at Aurora.

The bride is a graduate of Gould Academy and has attended Bates College, the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College at Kirksville, Mo., Aurora College and the Copley Memorial Hospital School of Nursing at Aurora.

Mr. Barrett is a graduate of West High School in Aurora and is employed at Farmers Electric Co. in Aurora, Ill.

ACROSS the DESK

From The Deer Creek Press, Deer Creek, Colorado: Leland and General Leslie R. Groves, who headed the wartime Manhattan Project that produced the atomic bomb and who has been intimately associated with atomic development ever since, recently had something important and authoritative to say about the atomic age.

He reviewed what is being done in this and other countries to produce electric power with atomic fuel. He said that the Atomic Energy Commission is maintaining its leadership. Then he advised that we "keep a sharp eye on those domestic politicians who bend their efforts toward keeping private industry out of the atomic field."

He said also that maximum progress will come from encouraging private enterprise to do as much of the development job as possible, and added: "Certainly a big government construction program such as was proposed in the last Congress would inevitably put atomic development in the middle of the age-old public-private power fight. This would be a backward move which might well lead to disaster."

It can be added that some of these who are urging the government program have long been associated with the campaign to put government ever deeper into the power business, on a tax-free, tax-subsidized monopolistic basis, regardless of whether the power is to be produced by water, atomic energy, oil, or coal. General Groves was dead right when he said that if they succeed in their current effort, disaster can be expected.

From The Independent, Faquay Springs, North Carolina: Not long ago a newspaper symposium presented views of readers on English words—their origin, the saddest, and so forth. This leads us to the observation that within the English language is a word to supply every purpose, no matter how fine may be the shade of meaning to be expressed. The problem is to have the word available for use when needed.

Most people must explore the recesses of their memories for a while before coming up with the word they want. It eludes others entirely, and they must settle for a weak substitute. They are among the people, probably the great majority, who never are able to get words together satisfactorily to make known their thoughts and ideas.

Economic Highlights

Events That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Today a bright economic future is on the drawing boards. But one important aspect of it has been overlooked. That aspect is the investor on whom in large measure, all the rest depends.

This view was expressed by Keith Funtston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in an address before the recent 81st Congress of American Industry. The title of his talk indicates its substance — "Needed: A Fair and Warmer Investment Climate."

As Mr. Funtston sees it, we are on the verge of advances greater than any we have known, and such advances are likely to make unparalleled demands not only on our resources and ingenuity, but on our investment philosophy as well. In support of this position, he cites some impressive figures. Our gross national product, the economic term for the total value of all goods and services produced, has passed $400 billion a year, not long ago a sum not even remotely attainable. Most estimates say that it will reach $500 billion, a jump of 25 per cent, by 1958, and some forecast a still higher level.

In Mr. Funtston's words, "The impact of this new output on our already high living standards—assuming relatively stable prices—will be both staggering and multifaceted. For the average family, it will very likely mean an after tax income of over $7,000 a year. It will mean a bigger house with an extra room on a larger lot; a second car for the family that now has one; better food cooked on a more efficient range, and more children and better communities to live in."

However, he goes on, "Like all things of value, this future has a price tag." And it is one which of a price $200 billion. That is the amount of capital our corporations will have to spend to build the plant capacity needed to meet 1965 goals. And $200 billion of that—an average of $4 billion a year—should be raised through the sale of new stock. Of the $20 billion, institutional investors can be expected to supply about half, leaving $10 billion to come directly from the American people. And this, as he points out, "represents a hitherto unknown scale of direct individual investments in . . . common stocks." It is three times the rate of recent years.

But it is not, to Mr. Funtston's mind, an impossible goal by any means. We have the potential—last year, for instance, new stock issues reached an all-time high of about $50 billion, representing a 30 per cent rise over 1955. Some 3.3 million people now own stock in publicly-held corporations—one out of every 12 adults in the country. But to realize this potential, we need that fair and warmer investment climate."

There are various unfair burdens on the investor that Mr. Funtston cites. One is double taxation on dividends—first the corporation pays a big tax on profits before it can distribute any dividends and then the individual income tax takes a second deep bite. Another is the capital gains tax—something that does not exist in Canada, England, or most other industrialized nations. Such penalties as these are a discouragement to the potential stock purchaser. And this is not a problem that just affects the wealthy—for, today, two-thirds of all shareholders have incomes of under $7,500 a year.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE EDITORS

From Paul K. Sorrento, Milford, New Hampshire: I remember the this we kids used back in 1936, made of barrel staves which were bored up a little more by the use of steam and rope clamps, and the leather straps which were nailed to the staves and under which we stored our feet. They cost nothing and we often used a piece of glass to make the underside a little smoother, although it was soon discovered that simply showing the contraptions over bare ground soon gave that glassy surface without the effort expended in trying it the harder way.

We took to the greater slopes and rarely used sticks or poles, unless the other kids would call us snobs or because of it and if we fell down in the snow nobody ever got lost. The staves were usually quite short and you could kick em' off quickly and with gusto if necessary on occasion. We chose pine bark because the shape was not too steep and after making the art of keeping balance were soon trying to leap over rocks and boulders along the path.

We doubt if the kids of today had as much fun as we with our old barrel staves and even though the kids of today are far better and cost real money but that is merely a matter of opinion. It is a fact however that we could compete with the kids of today on most any slope in the snow country and perhaps beat the modern skiers at their own game and still remain in standing position. We had no ski instruction, learned by instinct and knew how and when to come in a full stop without breaking our arms or hitting a pine tree and falling to the ground. The only thing we did wrong was the fact that we did not have the ski boots, which were made of leather and had a strap across the foot.

Q—Can you tell me if the war veteran population is growing or receding?

A—According to the Veterans Administration veterans of all wars in civil life at the end of April 1956 totaled 22,391,000 as compared to 21,995,000 a year ago. However World War II veterans are diminishing. There were 22,500 less veterans of world war II on April 30, 1956 than the same date in 1955, and there were 85,000 less veterans of World War I in the same period.

Q—When did Congress provide that a new star be added to the flag upon admission of a new state?

A—This was an act of Congress of April 4, 1818.

Q—What was the main difference between the government under the old Articles of Confederation, and that established by the Constitution.

A—Under the articles of Confederation, the government was called a union of States or a Confederation, with each state considering itself supreme in many ways. Under the Constitution, the Government becomes a union of people elevated above sectional or state interests, all united into a nation with a common aim and destiny.

Q—Is there a statue of Christopher Columbus in Washington?

A—Yes, it is a large fountain statue on a plaza adjacent to the Union Railroad station looking toward the Capitol Building.

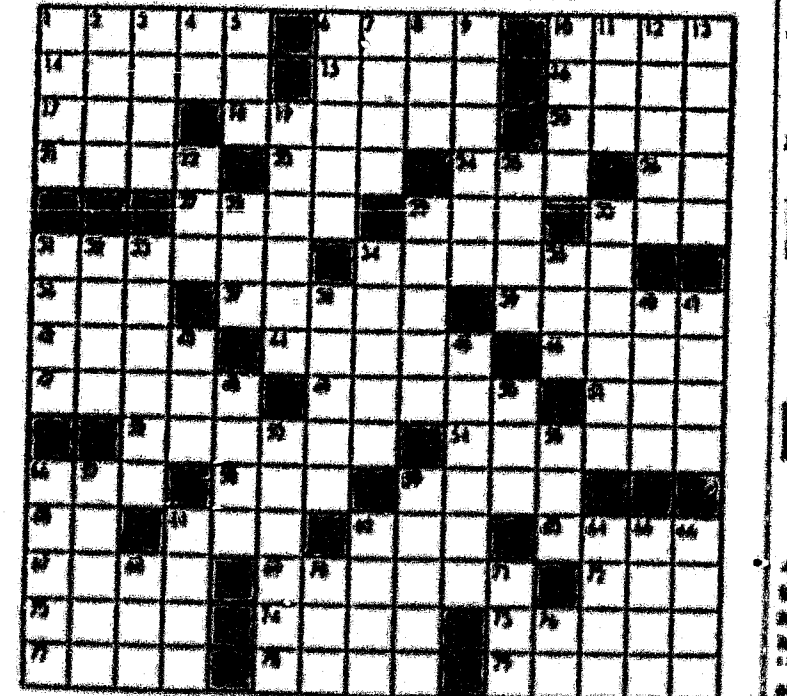

Q—Where does the words "The United States of America" first appear officially?

A—In the articles of Confederation, Article 1 reads: "The Style of this Confederacy shall be 'The United States of America'."

TODAY'S Meditation

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, January 17

Read Romans 8:16-21.
Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. (John 14:27.)

THE noted Christian leader of Ceylon, D. T. Niles, once said: "We may pray for safety, but not for shelter."

Human instincts of self-preservation make us long for shelter and security. We long for defense measures to give security against the H-bomb, and for a quiet corner of the earth where we can live in peace.

But the safety of the soul does not depend on shelter and security. Indeed, it is only as we in God's strength meet our trials that we find the "peace of God, which passeth all understanding."

In a broadcast to the British Commonwealth, the late King George VI quoted a passage from M. L. Haskins: "I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year: 'Give me a light, that I may tread safely into the unknown!' And he replied: 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than a known way.'"

Prayer
Like children frightened in the dark, we grope for Thy hand, O Father. Give us faith to trust Thee this day. With Thy peace in our hearts, we are confident that unknown future cannot make us afraid. In the Master's name. Amen.

Thought For The Day
I will put my hand into the hand of God.—Mrs. Harold T. Cook (England)

REV. ROBERT M. HARPER

DECLINE

AMID the ice and snow of winter is a good time to read again the story of a youth who through an Alpine village passed, bearing a banner with the strange device, "Kreisel!"

He was later found on the highest height, cold and dead, but he still grasped in his hand of ice a banner with the strange device, "Kreisel!"

Whether in winter or in summer, in spring or autumn, amid whatever ice and difficulties, let us never be satisfied with less than the best. Let us consecrate ourselves to the doing of our tasks well, whatever they may be. At the last day, when the King shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, he shall sit on the throne of his glory and of the nations gathered before him he shall judge every man according to his ability. And the man's ability in certain things will fit him to do yet other great things. Whereas he has ruled over ten cities, he will be appointed to rule over twenty cities.

The man of one talent who shall be cast into outer darkness where all opportunity shall be withdrawn, shall not be so dealt with because he has had only one talent but because he has not used what he had. Do well your part, that you may one day hear the King say to you, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Mr and Mrs Henry Sanderson had a phone call from Mrs Sanderson's sister and her husband, Mr and Mrs Frank Pike Sr., Friday evening from California. The Pikes are spending the winter there, racing Mr Pike's string of fine horses. They called to say they are doing fine, and their son, Frank Jr., and family arrived last Tuesday, safe and sound. They will spend a month with their parents before returning to Connecticut, where young Pike is foreman on the new turnpike that is being built there.

Mrs Beverly Nutting of Limerick was a week end guest of her parents, Mr and Mrs Lawrence Herrick.

WIDE, WONDERFUL WORLD

Birdwatchers and birdbanders must have worked together to determine that swiftness, closely allied to homingbirds, by as far as a thousand miles from the nest for abundant food. The young swiftness are adapted to survive starvation for several days becoming torpid, or sluggish.

If fully matured horses had remained at their original size, we would probably be using them as house pets. The Kolipessa, one of the earliest American horses, was only 12 inches high. Passing years have seen an increasing growth in size. Today's racing horses may be as many as 16 hands high. (A "hand" is four inches.)

Rats aren't commonly accepted as welcome house pets, but they do serve a scientific purpose. They are often used for dietary studies. When presented meals of sugar, wheat and fat simultaneously and equally accessible, they ate the food in that order. It deprived of fat for some days, the rats feed for the fat content first instead of last. The same applies to other foods.

It is highly unlikely that your children have watched Egyptian camels on television, but the practice of branding cattle originated in Egypt several centuries B. C., probably by Hiram's Pharaoh. Horses were branded in England at least as early as the eighth century. To the ranching industry, established by the Spanish, the "mark of the iron" was an absolute necessity. A brand established the owner's claim to his livestock and identified the animal not only on the horse range but on distant ranges to which they may stray. All large market stockyards in western America have brand inspectors. Branding is known as the "heraldry of the range."

More than 2000 years ago people were playing field hockey—but it wasn't until the 19th century that a set standard of rules was drawn up for the game. It was universally played in France during the Middle Ages, and it was there that it got its name, the word hockey being a corruption of "hoquet," the French term for a shepherd's stick. The hockey had its origin in France, where the first recorded game of the hockey was played in Montreal in 1879. It was introduced into the United States in 1895.

STEARNS - CLEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Stearns of Rumford Corner announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra, to Marcel Clement, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Clement of Mercer.

Miss Stearns is a senior at Stephens High School in Rumford. Mr. Clement graduated from Snow-began High School in the class of 1955, and is presently employed at the Oxford Paper Company in Rumford.

No date has been set for the wedding.

FORMER BETHEL BOY ACTIVE IN SCHOOL AND 4-H WORK

The story of "Teddy" Hancoc as told in the "Personality Parade" feature in The Washington, D. C., Sunday Star of Dec. 9, will be of great interest to his many Bethel friends.

Frank Edward (Ted) Hancoc is good at talking. He's got medals to prove it.

Sixteen-year-old Ted is president of the Public-Speaking and Debate Club of Osborn High School, Manassas, Va. He is also parliamentarian of the Northern Virginia Debate League, and last year he was alternate member of the State Champion Debate Team of the Virginia High School League.

The Osborn Junior, who wants to be a lawyer, has placed among the top three in the Virginia State 4-H Public Speaking Contest for the last two years. He won both the Prince William County and Northern Virginia District contest this year. In 1954 and 1955 he was the winner of the Osborn High School Debate Award.

Ted is an A student and for the last three years he has been on the principal's list of honor students. He is vice-president of the Junior class. As a sophomore he was director of the Key Club of the school, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. This year he is still a member. He is also publicity manager of the "Yellow Jacket," the school newspaper.

As if he weren't busy enough, Ted writes for the Manassas Journal Messenger, the county newspaper. He has a horse, Gipsy Gay, a registered Morgan, which he shows and jumps. At his home in Manassas, Va., he also has a registered Brown Swiss cow named Sally. Sally was State 4-H champion two years ago and made the 4-H State Dairy honor roll for three months because of her high milk production.

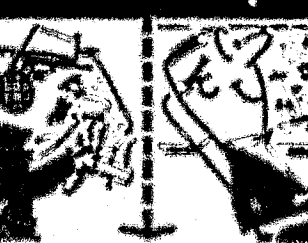

In his other 4-H Club work, Ted was awarded the Prince William County leadership medal for 1954 and the Danforth Award in the community leadership field.

Ted is a member of the 4-H Honor Club of Prince William County. He is also song leader and former president of the Haymarket, Va., senior 4-H Club and a junior leader and song leader of the 4-H Prince William County Council.

State 4-H club leaders in Maine are Kenneth C. Lowrey and Margaret F. Stevens both of the Maine Extension Service. County 4-H club agents serve each county in Maine.

Operating costs of softwood lumber in Maine averages five to nine dollars per thousand board feet each for cutting, yarding and trucking.

GOULD ACADEMY

Farmington at Bethel Friday
Gould at Bridgton Tuesday
Farmington High will be at Bethel Friday for a double header with the JVs opening up at 8:30.
The Greyhounds are having their troubles too this year and match the Huskies' record, each having won only one game at the time of writing. Both clubs will be trying hard to grab that second win.
On Tuesday the Gould Varsity and J. V. teams will be travelling to Bridgton for a return game. The J. V. contest here was a close one and promises to be a game worth seeing. The Bridgton varsity took a 42-26 victory on the Field House floor and are favored to make it two in a row playing on their own court.

Old Orchard Takes Gould 75-33
A sharp shooting well balanced Old Orchard team proved too much for the locals as the Sea Hawks ran off with a one-sided 75 to 33 victory. The visitors led 21 to 8 at the first period but it was in the second stanza that they really got their lead scoring 30 points to the Huskies 4.
All five of the starters for Old Orchard scored in double figures with the speedy Ladaikos leading the way with 18. Whitten led for Gould with 13 points.

Mr. Groman was the second in a series of School Assembly Service speakers to be heard by Gould students.

Gould Skills Past Holderness
Gould Academy downed the Holderness School of Plymouth, N. H., last Saturday in the first interscholastic ski meet of 1957. Gould swept all three events from the visitors as the jumping competition was not held as the Holderness team had no prior jumping practice. Melvin Jodrey and Alan Ordway were individual pacesetters in Gould's triumph.

PORTER HIGH 53 - GOULD 32
Porter High of Kezar Falls defeated Gould Academy here last Tuesday by a 53 to 32 score. The Huskies were in the game during the first half but a 21 to 8 third period sent the visitors into a comfortable lead.

For Porter Ronco, Ridlon, and Welch with 15, 14, and 23 points led the way. The only man on the Gould team to score over four points was Whitten with 15. In the preliminary game the Gould JV's trailed most of the way but put on a thrilling finish to win 48-43.

WIDE, WONDERFUL WORLD

BY FRANKLIN J. MEINE
Editor, The American Peoples Encyclopedia

THE canary, the Lencashire canary, the Norwich canary, and the budgerigar have something in common. If you know they are popular cage birds, you deserve a place at the head of the class. Captive cage birds were kept by the early Assyrians, Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans who endeavored to predict the future from the birds' habits, notes, and songs. The most popular small cage birds today are canaries. They have been under domestication for several hundred years.

especially in the Harz Mountains of Germany. In addition to the Lancashire canary and the Norwich canary, canaries have some unusual names, including the Border fancy, the Scotch fancy, and the Norwich crest. Some of these "fancy" birds sell for as much as $500 per head. Parrots and their kin are familiar cage birds. They include parakeets, lorikeets, cockatoos, budgerigars, and lovebirds.

Historians gain their knowledge from many sources, including monumental brasses, a type of grave decoration popular from the 13th to 18th centuries. Consisting of stone slabs covered with thick plates of a species of brass called latten, inscriptions or epitaphs were used as borders and the center contained the engraved likeness of the buried person.

This is actually a portable forced-air furnace. It circulates warm air inside a room or building or does "spot" heating outside. It burns inexpensive kerosene or fuel oil so completely that it leaves no dangerous fumes, needs no vent, 110-115 volt current ignites the fuel and runs the blower. Safe, lightweight, effective. Costs only 12c per hour to run. If you need temporary heat, inside or out, here's your solution. Comes in 100,000, 160,000, and 400,000 BTU-per-hour capacities. From Mrs. Myrtle May, Hardwick, Vermont: I can remember my father telling us about the first mowing machines to be used around Sheldon, Vt. A man would ride on the machine and another walk behind it. When the cutter bar needed to be raised the man who walked would lift it. The first horse rake also needed two men to operate it, one riding and another walking to dump it.

From Arthur Johnson, Palatka, Fla.: As a boy in Michigan I remember when we cut our ice supply from a fresh water lake. The ice was cut by hand saws, sledged to the ice house and stored or packed solid. The walls and ceiling of the ice house was packed with pine sawdust.

From J. C. When little girls made dolls with hickory nuts for heads, bodies from cornstalks and dresses from husks.

TELL US YOUR PROBLEM

AND LET US PLAN TO SOLVE IT FOR YOU

BY JOHN and JANE STRICKLAND

RALPH MARGETSON, 7 Wil-lows Court, Regina, Canada, was one of the many young men of his country and ours who have had to work their way through college. He supplemented what he earned on the campus with what he earned during his summer vacations.

His father had his own business and could use all the help he could get, particularly during the summer months when his employees had vacations. So Ralph worked for his father in a business in which he had no interest and at a job he normally would never have undertaken, i.e., selling. He was no salesman and he knew it; he didn't even want to be a salesman. But sell, he must.

Day after day went by and his sales counted for practically nothing. He wasn't interested in his customers nor in what they wanted.

Then he read an article about an insurance salesman who went out to sell insurance and was a failure. That is, until he was taught the value of enthusiasm. He put enthusiasm that he didn't even feel into his work, and lo and behold, soon he actually became enthusiastic.

Ralph decided to emulate this insurance man. He pretended to be enthusiastic over the article the next customer was interested in, and found himself agreeably surprised when the sale was consummated. He tried a dose of enthusiasm on the next customer, who, too, made a purchase. Throughout the day Ralph kept this up, and before the day was over he found himself really pleased when he supplied a customer with something he wanted. He began to feel truly enthusiastic over the goods he sold. Came the end of the summer. Said his father, "Son, I wish I could find a dozen young men who are as good at selling as you are. I could make a fortune—and so could they."

When Ralph finished college, he found that we all have something to sell, whether it be our brains, our energy, or a commodity, and he found that this same Enthusiasm is a vital factor in selling successfully whatever it is we have to sell.

VIEWS THAT DESERVE ATTENTION

Cuts in the highly progressive income tax rate would probably produce more rather than less revenue, by stimulating investments and speeding the nation's economic growth. That is one facet of a statement sent to a House subcommittee on taxation by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A similar belief has been expressed by Ernest G. Swiger, president of the National Association of Manufacturers. In his view, normal economic growth, by providing increasing revenues to the government, would make possible reductions in both individual and corporate income tax rates without adding to anyone's tax burden.

The Chamber's statement said that across-the-board reductions could be made even in a period of high defense outlays that a sound program of controlled spending and borrowing by the federal government, plus the increased revenue from a fair and reasonable tax structure which would not be a deterrent to individual initiative and investment.

Views such as these certainly deserve the careful attention of the Congressmen who will deal with possible changes in the tax laws this year. If more money is left in the hands of the people, then more money will go into investment and into the channels of trade, and that in itself will be a strong stimulant to the government's tax take.

Finally, the more important parts of the Hoover Commission recommendations remain to be acted on. And here is a place where we can save billions a year, without in any way impairing essential government functions.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Allons, Pa. Mirror: "It makes a dismal reading that for the second successive year the Nobel peace prize committee meeting in Norway has been unable to find anyone worthy of its cherished award."

In many corners of the earth are striving desperately to accomplish it. Despite their efforts, the Nobel committee had to say sadly: "None of these will do!" And as the committee returns to the search for another year, the explosive events of Europe and the Middle East underscore their trials.

Chetok, Wisc. Alert: "In 1936, when Herbert Hoover was President-elect of the United States, he remarked that in a nation as great as ours there should be two chickens in every pot and two cars in every American garage. The bubble-headed politicians... made sport of Hoover for suggesting such a goal for this country. The United States should be thankful for statesmen of faith like Herbert Hoover who has lived to see most of his detractors proven wrong by the events of history."

Salt Lake City, Utah, Park Record: "This is a very fine time to be thankful (for the)... patience of all the people who have to put up with our boaters every week, and who, we hope, realize our mistakes are mechanical, never intentional. Seems lately we've been having more than our share. We ask your added patience in remembering that the lawyer sends his mistakes to the pen; the doctor writes his; the farmer plows his under. We put ours in the newspaper."

...suppliment with highway matters. The first 1957 bill to reach the Senate calls for allocation of $1,000,000 in fiscal 1957-58, and $2,000,000 the following year for state aid road construction. The measure, presented by Sen. William F. Cole (R-Liberty), represents an increase in state aid road spending of $30,000 in the first year and $100,000 in the second. The Cole bill has an emergency rider and thus would become effective as soon as it was signed by the governor. The emergency clause was used, the senator explained, because the towns need to know at the time of their meeting in March how much they will need to raise in matching funds to get state aid grants.

Mrs. Margaret Old Age Assistance. The Maine Committee on Aging presented the new Legislature with a program calling for more liberal help for the state's older citizens. For one thing, it recommends a thorough study of the growing number of industrial pension plans. For another, improved care, ranging from rehabilitation to self-care of mildly disturbed patients in state mental hospitals; a state-federal program of nursing home care for the needy; better job opportunities and an increase in the $300 ceiling on assets older people may hold without being ineligible for old age assistance.

The Committee, with Sen. Carlton S. Fuller (R-Buckfield) as chairman, called attention to the growing popularity of retirement plans in industry and suggested that all Maine employers and labor unions cooperating in such plans be required to file annual reports for four years with the Commissioner of Labor and Industry. Required information would include contributions and benefit schedules, lists of participating employees, their contributions, and a detailed outside audit.

Morrill Is Seated. On Wednesday the House seated Gardner R. Morrill (R-Harrison) who won election in a recount after the original tally gave Democrat Samuel L. Pitts the victory.

Causeway-Bridge. Among the first bills to reach this Legislature is one introduced by Rep. Howard W. Call (R-Cumberland) calling for construction of a 23-million causeway and bridge to permit travel from the mainland at Cumberland to Chebeague Island in Casco Bay. The causeway would run from Cousins Island to Littlejohn Island and a new bridge would extend from the latter to Chebeague. A bridge already connects Cousins Island with the shore.

The state needs a travelling clinic to aid backward children and their parents, in the opinion of the Maine Committee on Mentally Retarded. In addition to proposing such a clinic, the Committee recommends expansion of public education for retarded pupils who could benefit from vocational training at the high school level, increased salaries and services at Pownall State School, expansion of a job-training program for Pownall patients, and legal establishment of the Maine Committee on Problems of the Mentally Retarded, with an expense account.
